WHAT IS LABELNET

Lahore Business and Economics Libraries Network (LABELNET) was launched in January 1990. The objective behind the planning and formation of this network was to create a model information sharing network of libraries in Lahore specializing in the areas of Public & Business Administration, Economics and allied disciplines. The participating libraries were conscious that individually their resources are limited but collectively they hold an amazing variety of resources. They were aware of the fact that sharing of these resources will be an invaluable service to the community. Proper bibliographical control of the available information is a prerequisite for such sharing. But the lack of funds and staff was the major obstacle in this matter. The formation of Lahore Librarians Cooperative Group in July 1986 was the first step towards the achievement of this goal. The commitment, of the participating libraries, to their cause resulted in two years long deliberations with the International Development Research Center (IDRC) Canada, after which the LABELNET project was approved for funding by the centre. The Lahore University of Management Sciences agreed to provide matching financial support and is the coordinating centre of the project.

The network is intended to provide users, within the network or elsewhere, the information about availability of relevant materials in network libraries. An IBM PS/2 Model 80 computer and Micro CDS/ISIS software is used to hold its main database and for doing the various indexing, searching and report production exercises.

INTRODUCTION

In this age of information explosion, human knowledge is advancing at an accelerated speed. Technological advance in recording this ever increasing body of knowledge has resulted in the production of so many books and other media of information, that it is now impossible for any single library to hold every thing being printed about even one specific discipline. This has led to idea of resource-sharing among libraries. Through this practice, the contents of one library can be made accessible to the users of other libraries by establishing mutual cooperation.

Resource-sharing among libraries is not possible until librarians and users are well aware of what is available in other libraries. Recognizing the importance of such information, the Lahore Business and Economics Libraries Network (LABELNET) has as one of its core programmes the preparation of Union Lists, and Union Catalogs of materials available in the Network Libraries. The material published on Pakistan's Business and Economy is most relevant to local researchers and development planners. This is not easily available to them because of the absence of proper bibliographical control. The material is not only difficult to locate, it is also gradually disappearing from the community. LABELNET has therefore selected this, area as the scope for its various tasks. Through this, the project aims to facilitate access to this information for its users and the exchange of the relevant materials available amongst member libraries.

The catalog in hand is the fifth publication of the LABELNET Project and No. 4 of its Union Catalogs. It comprises 2712 entries of books, reports, government documents and other materials relevant to Pakistan's Business and Economy. Most of the recorded material has been published in Pakistan. This publication is based on data collected from August 1991 - October 1991 and reflects the collection of the Department of Economics, University of the Punjab and Lahore Chamber of Commerce and Industry and duplication at LUMS, PASC, CSA and PERI. Coming catalogs will provide information about contents of other member libraries, as the data collection work proceeds.

LABELNET Union Catalog is the output of a computerized union catalog held in LABELNET's UNIC database. It would appear at three months' interval and would record data collected during the quarter. UNIC is a common bibliographic database developed at the coordinating centre of the Project, the Lahore University of Management Sciences. It has been developed on an IBM PS/2 System 80 Computer, using Micro-CDS/ISIS software. Which means that the information contained is also available on diskettes. Special searches can also be made and bibliographies tailored to one's specific requirements can be compiled upon request.

The publication is a result of the combined effort of the project team, I have pleasure in acknowledging the hard work and determination of Mr. Naveed Iqbal Khan in collecting and editing the data required for this publication and that of Mirza Sohail Liaqat for so efficiently entering the data, and printing the document.

USER'S GUIDE

This catalog offers four major access points for locating the material.

1. By broad subject area through the main body.
2. By specific subjects through the subject index.
3. By author through the author index.
4. By title through the title index.

The main body contains one citation for each document's record in the LABELNET database. This is broadly arranged under twenty five subject areas. Within each area the citations are arranged in alphabetical order by Title of the document and are sequentially numbered. Under each title complete bibliographic information has been provided about the document.

The main body is followed by indexes for specific subjects, authors and titles. Reference to relevant citations has been provided by sequence numbers in the main body. The contents of a typical entry in UNION CATALOG are:

1. Citation Number

In the first line of the item each record has been assigned a unique sequence number by the computer system. In Author, Title and Subject index, the access to the desired citations is through this number.

1. Document Type Code

The code relevant to the type of publication of the document is the second item printed in the first line. A list of these codes is available in the list of abbreviations.

2. Document Level Code

This code indicates the bibliographic level of the item. A list of these codes is available in the list of abbreviations.

3. Language Code

The language codes indicate the text language of the document. In case of multilingual, a slash ( / ) has been used to separate the languages codes.

The first line is followed by the complete bibliographic description of the document. The information provided is:

1. Title

Within each section, the records are sorted alphabetically by title. The title, subtitle and parallel title are printed in upper case. If a document is written in a language other than English, the transliterated title is accompanied by the translated title in square brackets

2. Personal/Corporate Author

Author(s) name is/are given just after the title, separating both fields with a slash. This area also contains information about editors, compilers etc., identified by their relevant designations.

3. Edition

Edition statement if available in the document is given after the author

4. Place of Publication

Name of the country or city, the document has published from.

5. Publisher

The name of the publisher is provided following the place to which it relates. If the name of the publisher appears in a recognizable form in the author area, then it is given in a shortened form

6. Year of Publication

The year in which a document or issue of a document is published

7. Collation

The physical extent of a document, such as pagination, number of physical pieces and presence of illustrative material etc.

8. Series

A collective title applying to the group as a whole is given where available. Standard abbreviations and Arabic numerals are used to record the series.

9. Notes

Where possible notes are made for the convenience of the users.

10. Standard Number

The international standard number, e.g. ISBN, ISSN or any other internationally agreed upon standard number, that uniquely identifies an item is provided if available.

A cluster of keywords under the bibliographic details provide various descriptors to reflect the subject content of a documentary unit. Two levels of subject descriptors are provided:

1. Primary Descriptors

Primary descriptors are printed in capital and indicate the primary subjects dealt with in the document.

2. Secondary Descriptors

Secondary descriptors indicate other areas touched upon by the document.

3. Geographic Descriptors

Names of city, country or region corresponding to the concepts expressed in the document.

4. Local Descriptors

Local descriptors are printed in italic. These are the descriptors that do not fall within the scope of the thesaurus but these are required by the system.

At the bottom, address of the document is given in 3 columns. This contains:

1. Location code(s) of relevant libraries in which document is available.
2. Call Number of the library identifies the document and indicate its location within that library.
